

Fischer Identity Suite™: Product Brief

Secure Your Risk. Increase Your Bottom Line™

Technology used to be an enabler of business processes. Today, technology is the business process. The vast majority of every business process is driven, managed, and audited inside the IT enterprise. Order to Cash, Engage To Close, Transact to Fulfill, and other processes are now technologies, meaning that employees, customers, and partners participate substantially (or exclusively) through the IT enterprise.

Moving forward, being "open for business" means opening the enterprise. This is the future of Identity Management - enabling organizations to touch a growing number of participants, quickly, and on-demand, yet without increasing risk, effort, or cost. Fischer Identity Suite™ is the Future of Identity Management.

The Next Generation Architecture

Fischer Identity Suite 2.0 is the new industry standard for Identity Management in adaptive enterprises. Built as an integration technology, Fischer's next-generation architecture enables organizations to safely and securely open the enterprise to more participants, systems, and applications, but with far less effort and risk.

Conventional Identity Management solutions typically bolt-together acquired applications or point solutions, making them expensive and cumbersome to deploy, change, and maintain. Fischer's next-generation architecture was developed with enterprise integration in mind, and was built from the ground up and based on industry standards, such as Services-Oriented Architecture, Java and XML. Fischer Identity Suite 2.0 incorporates a common set of services into one comprehensive solution, so that integration is focused on quickly bringing together enterprise applications and resources, not disparate Identity Management technologies.

With built-in compliance and ease of connectivity, Fischer Identity Suite 2.0 enables enterprise Identity Management events to be recorded and audited as part of everyday business processes. Compliance can now be incorporated with other business processes, further leveraging the Identity Management investment and driving down costs. To further reduce costs, compliance is a core element of the Fischer architecture, and is provided without additional charge.
